ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Data organizing systems and methods organize a plurality of data files using meta data or other data relating to a plurality of data files by extracting the related data for at least some of the data files, organizing the extracted related data and dividing at least some of the data files into groups based on the extracted related data and an input parameter value.